"5x5" new opportunities for the NCD response: tackling mental health and air pollution

The political declaration from the third high-level meeting of the United Nations General Assembly on the prevention and control of noncommunicable diseases (NCD HLM), held in September 2018, provides the most recent, explicit and prominent articulation of national governments' desire and commitment to formally expand the NCD agenda to include mental health and air pollution respectively.

Air pollution is recognised as a major risk factor, as dangerous to public health as tobacco, linked to around 7 million premature deaths worldwide every year. Mental and neurological disorders are NCDs by definition and recognised as a major contributor to the global burden of disease, but had not been prioritized for particular attention following earlier political declarations. By moving from "4 by 4" to "5 by 5" (colloquially), Member States have established greater parity between mental health conditions and other NCDs, and have also provided new opportunities for a more holistic, collaborative and person-centred response to NCD prevention and management.

This webinar will discuss this strategic opportunity for the NCD response with experts on mental health and air pollution, noting that WHO will be invited to present sets of recommended policy interventions by 2020 on both issues.

Please note that the live webinar will be open to the public, but slides and recording of the webinar will be shared only with NCD Alliance members (full and associate) and partners. If you are not already a member or partner of the NCD Alliance, and would like to learn more about the benefits of being one, please click here [2] to learn more and apply.
