Language English

Public health advocates speak out against ultra-processed food industry in Mexico.

National and regional alliances between organisations in the field of noncommunicable diseases have joined forces around the world to advocate to governments, provide education and patient support, and to raise awareness of the growing NCD burden. As a globally connected network, alliances are instrumental in advocating for better policies to address NCD management and prevention across relevant sectors.

If you know of, or are interested in joining or creating a national NCD alliance in your country, please contact us [1].
